Subject: Chat with Clark Robinson
From: Clark Robinson <robinsonchicago@gmail.com>
To: barriticus@gmail.com me: so, I may be writing for League of Ordinary Gentlemen me: as per your tip Clark: that's great Clark: who else writes there beside Kain?

Clark: I'll go look Clark: scott payne is the only one i recognize, I will have to start reading some of them besides Kain me: most importantly, they get linked to by Sullivan quite a bit (particularly Erik,) so this will be a chance to gain wider recognition Clark: i have noticed sullivan pays a lot of attention to Kain, which is good, I think Kain is a more impressive writer than sullivan me: probably; I've only read a bit of Kain's work thus far Clark: well, he wrote some downright silly stuff in the past, such as his defense of the pope (the current one is not nearly as bad as his predecessor was the argument), but it was better than any other effort to defend the Church that I have seen, so I respected him for trying me: that's a tough job Clark: the website that campbell put up has nice look to it me: link?
Clark: http://projectpm.singingsites.com/
Clark: needs content, badly
Clark: I will be back later, I need to do some work on this house